All Templates Are Customizable and Can Be Used Immediately. See more Employees want to be recognized for their hard work. Forbes says that if you show recognition to your employees, they're more likely to stick to your business. And that means that you don't have to spend on new hires. So, it's really vital to appreciate them—especially those that shine. And one of the ways to show appreciation to your most hard-working employee is giving an "employee of the month certificate," and to help you with that, check out the tips below. 1. Use a Neat Design When it comes to making an employee award or employee appreciation certificate, you have to make sure that its layout is neat. It has to be clear and organized. You don't need to be too creative with design because it's best to keep the layout clear and professional-looking. To do this, you can start by choosing your color scheme. You may use your business's (restaurant, hotel, etc.) color scheme to keep your brand. Or you can try choosing different ones. 2. Input Short Phrases It would be best to use short phrases for your employee certificate. Your employee of the month certificate doesn't need to contain too many words. You have to write the certificate's title, the employee's full name, award's details, and a signature section. 3. Use Two Typography Typography can make your simple certificate look better; however, using too much of it can ruin your design. That's why you only have to choose two typography for your text. This way, your certificate's content is legible and doesn't ruin its layout and design. 4. Get a Template When you feel like creating an employee award certificate from scratch is time-consuming, you can always switch to using a template. We have different employee of the month certificate templates above that you can choose from. You can edit your template on our editor tool, Google Docs, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe InDesign, Microsoft Word, Outlook, Apple Pages, Adobe Photoshop, and Microsoft Publisher.
